Maj. McKinley in a recent speech stated the tariff situation in four lines as well as it could be done in four columns. He said: "Nothing I can say of the new tariff can help it. Nothing that its enemies say can hinder it. Its operations alone can do it hurt."

The New York Recorder has completed its fund for a statue to Gen. William T. Sherman. It began to solicit subscriptions for this fund, in its first issue and now, at the end of five weeks when the books are closed, it announces that the sum of $56,370.55 has been raised.

Present indications are that the Parnell envoys will not collect enough money in America to pay their individual expenses. This is not because American sympathy for Ireland is waning, but because Americans refuse to endorse the dishonorable private acts of Mr. Parnell.

There is no discount on the Americanism of Bishop Keane. He says this country is not only the grandest organization of popular institutions, but it is also the best embodiment of human fraternity and of Christian civilization which the world has yet seen. And the bishop is not a candidate for office.

The Maine Legislature does not seem to be letting down the bars in relation to the prohibitory laws of that State. The Senate has just passed the liquor bill as amended. It is now so changed as to practically remain the same as the present law, with the punishment increased for each offence to $100 fine with sixty days' imprisonment.

The president has fully decided to appoint the new judges of the United States circuit court during the congressional recess, and I am informed that he is now carefully considering the merits of the gentlemen whose names have been presented to him to fill those positions. Nothing has been decided upon as to Mr. Harrison's trip to the Pacific coast. He will go if he possibly can, but there is doubt as to his being able to leave here.

In Stockholm, Sweden, women carry mortar and bricks up to the mansions, and they are paid about 30 cents per day for this kind of work. Hod carriers in England, average daily wages, 85 cents. United States average daily wages, $2.44. When women do this work in the United States for the same price as in Sweden we shall be able to build just as cheaply as they do in Sweden. How happy this will make free traders.

Aside from party considerations the election of Felton, republican, United States senator from California, is a lucky strike from the fact he will succeed a free silverite and counterbalance Senator Stanford in the same direction. Senator elect Felton is sound in his financial views which fact was used against him in his election with all possible force, but without success. The presumption is that the free silver cause is convalescent.

If claims will win the speakership fight for Mills will have a walk over, but most people have an idea that it is votes and not wild claims that will settle the business. Mr. Mills has a corner on "claims" but how he is fixed with votes remains to be seen. As Mills would make about as unfit a speaker as it would be possible to select we trust that the democrats will elect him. His occupancy of the speaker's chair would make thousands of republican voters.

In commenting upon the decision of Vermont's Board of Agriculture to devote the balance of the appropriation to its credit to a continuance of the work of advertising the State's agricultural and manufacturing resources, the Springfield, Mass., Union pertinently says: "The result of past work in this line has been very satisfactory, and there is no reason why an Eastern State should not profit by advertising itself as Western States do. Business is business, and advertising is its prophet."

John T. Farish, a well known mining expert, who has returned from Colorado, says that never in all his experience in the mountains has he witnessed anything like the snow storms of the six weeks previous to April 1. For 18 days, he says, he was snowbound in the Red mountains near Rico, Cal., and during that period was literally cut off from the world. The snow storm, which raged for weeks, started in about February 15, and since that time the trails to the mines have been covered up and fully 50 lives lost by the disastrous snow slides that were of almost daily occurrence. The great producing mines are completely shut off and thousands of tons of ore are awaiting the re-opening of the trails.

The Trouble in the East.

Among a large percentage of voters in the Eastern States the benefits of the protective tariff are ignored and overlooked. Born and brought up amid the comparative prosperity created and maintained by protection these people have no knowledge, except by dim tradition, of what New England was under free trade, and familiar with the fortunate present, they care not for the struggles of the past. Other issues have been put forward and protection ignored. This is the chief trouble in the East, and it is owing to this indifference and ignorance that the Democrats have achieved their partial successes in certain States.

It is to be hoped that Major McKinley's addresses will have the influence they ought to command in arousing the people to the necessity of maintaining the principles of protection, if the country is to continue to maintain its industrial independence. The subject cannot be dwelt upon too often or too clearly. The principle of protection can always safely appeal to the American elector when once the elector is awakened to its importance.

The War in Chili.

Private advices from Valparaiso to San Francisco, April 1, state that the ironclad Blanco, belonging to the insurgents, recently attempted to blow up the armed government tug Florence with a fish torpedo. The torpedo missed the tug, but struck a big floating dry dock in the harbor, blowing it to pieces.

The Blanco was thereupon treated to a hot fire of shot and shell from every gun in the forts and steamed out of the harbor. The same night a torpedo boat and the tug Florence stole out to attack the Blanco. The ironclad was not alone, being company with the sloop of war O'Higgins. Both ships compelled the government vessel to return to the harbor and followed her in pursuit.

A heavy shell from the Blanco struck the Florence, blowing her entirely out of the water, and every one of her crew of 17 men were either killed or wounded. A broadside from the O'Higgins knocked the torpedo boat all to pieces. The two insurgent vessels then turned their attention to the forts and a lively battle ensued. A shot from the forts struck the O'Higgins and went clear through. Another shell caused a gun on her quarterdeck to explode.

When the smoke cleared away the deck was found to be literally torn out of the vessel and nine men out of the gun's crew of 12 were blown to atoms. The sloop was at once taken out of the range of the guns in the forts.

Reciprocity With Brazil.

The first of the reciprocity agreements negotiated and preferred by the present administration went into effect April 1. This is in accordance with a proclamation issued by President Harrison on February 5 last, informing the world that an agreement had been entered into during the month preceding.

A similar proclamation has been made in Brazil. This agreement, like those pending with Venezuela and other South and Central American countries, is the result of the Reciprocal clause in the new Tariff law. The following is a schedule of the tariff to be admitted free into Brazil: Wheat, wheat flour, corn or maize, and the manufactures thereof including corn meal and starch, rice, rice flour, buckwheat, buckwheat flour and barley, potatoes, beans and peas, hay and oats, pork salted, including pickled pork and bacon, except hams, fish, salted, dried or pickled. Cotton seed oil, coal anthracite and bituminous, rosin, tar, pitch and turpentine, agricultural tools, implements and machinery, mining and mechanical tools, implements and machinery, including stationary and portable engines and all machinery for manufacturing and industrial purposes, except sewing machines, instruments and books for the arts and sciences, railway construction material and equipments, schedule of articles to be admitted into Brazil with a reduction of 25 per centum duty manufactures of iron and steel, single or mixed, not included in the foregoing free schedule. Leather and the manufactures thereof, except boots and shoes; lumber timber and the manufactures of wood, including coopers, furniture of all kinds of wagons, carts and carriages; manufactures of rubber.

A Gross Discourtesy.

The action of the Italian Government in ordering a suspension of diplomatic relations with our own government pending an inquiry by the State Department into the New Orleans lynchings is premature and a gross discourtesy to a friendly government. Mr. Blaine, it should be remembered, was prompt and direct in taking action, and all American citizens must agree that the government of the United States has acted with the vigor that has characterized Mr. Blaine's administration of the State Department. The only possible excuse for such hasty action may be found in a letter of Governor Nicholls, which failed to treat the question with the gravity the awful crimes demanded at the hands of the man representing the execution of the laws of an important State. To assume for a moment that the tone and swagger assumed by the New Orleans lynchings represents the attitude of the United States Government after a careful investigation of those shocking crimes is an assumption so violent that we cannot understand by what course of reasoning it could have been reached by a friendly power. Yet there is no other explanation of the extraordinary action of yesterday. The state Department is now carrying on an investigation, an essential part of which is to ascertain positively how many of the unhappy victims of this outrage, if any, were really Italy's subjects. While thus engaged all intercourse is suddenly broken and the Italian Minister is ordered home.

Such action is directly contrary to the spirit of modern diplomacy and may lead to unpleasant complications. It should only have been taken after the United States Government had passed upon the question. The Italian Government cannot, in our opinion, magnify this question so that it will extend to the Italians in other parts of the country and assume the importance of a race war. The people of the United States have passed their judgment on these outrageous murders and on the men guilty of the crimes. There is but one opinion on that point outside of the immediate scene of the massacre. Italian American citizens must understand this. Exactly what the Italian Government hopes to gain by the recall of the Minister does not appear at this writing, but may develop hereafter. The opinion in diplomatic circles in Washington was decidedly that the move is little short of an insult to a friendly power whose officials had shown commendable promptness and an earnest desire to obtain justice for the subjects of the aggrieved nation.—Press.

The Italian Ministry Mad.

The Italian government is excited over the New Orleans massacre and Baron Fava, Minister from that country is recalled with some probability of further trouble.

As to whether the diplomatic relations of the two countries are by this act to be practically severed is the interesting question of the hour.

Notwithstanding the apparent patriotic stand of the Italian Government in view of the unjustifiable killing of the Italian subjects by the New Orleans mob, the impression commonly holds that the present action is for effect.

It is generally supposed that the Italian Government would await the conclusion of the Grand Jury investigation, now in progress, before taking any official and determinate action in the matter.

It is quite evident that the present Italian administration is exceedingly weak, and that it is endeavoring to make up in theatrical effects for its lamentable display of essential weakness.

There is, therefore, beyond all reasonable doubt a large degree of high jingoism in this apparently heroic and desperate move of Marquis di Rudini in recalling Baron Fava.

The Italian Minister himself, it is said, takes this view of the case, and expresses very forcibly his disapprobation of the present theatrical and "Jingo" policy of his home government.

It may be confidently stated that no immediate action will be taken by this country in view of the official recall of Baron Fava. Neither country has anything to gain by war, and the mere Ministerial pretense of patriotic concern on the part of Marquis di Rudini for Italian honor, dramatically displayed in the last move of the Italian Prime Minister, will fail of any serious effect upon the relations of the two governments.

Try Gold Medal Sarsaparilla (combined with red clover), the popular remedy.

The clause in the McKinley bill affecting the tariff on sugar went into effect April 1. All over the country thousands of barrels of sugar had been in bond in ware houses waiting the beginning of the operations of the law. The price has gone down two and one-half cents on a pound, everywhere, and in some cases three cents. No action of any political party ever directly affected so many people as this one clause. It will be felt in the homes of the poor as well as the rich and every person in all this broad land will have a burden raised from their shoulders.

Quincy troubled me for twenty years. Since I started using Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil, he had not troubled me. The oil cures rheumatism, neuralgia, sciatica, etc. It is pleasant and agreeable to taste, perfectly safe, and can always be depended upon. Trial bottles free at H. C. Pierce's drug store.

The rousing receptions given Maj. McKinley everywhere he goes are an indication that the people are beginning to understand the benefits of the tariff bill bearing his name, which was so unblushingly lied about last fall.

A Safe Investment.—Money which is put out to bring you satisfactory results, or in case of failure a return of purchase price. On this safe plan you can buy of our advertised druggist a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. It is guaranteed to bring relief in every case, when used for any affection of throat, lungs, or chest, such as consumption, inflammation of lungs, bronchitis, asthma, whooping cough, croup, etc., etc. It is pleasant and agreeable to taste, perfectly safe, and can always be depended upon. Trial bottles free at H. C. Pierce's drug store.

Nearly every family in Barton must be using Bragg's soap (no odor) judging from the large quantity O. R. Owen is selling.

Easter.

The resurrection is the pivotal fact of Christianity, and as this is recognized more fully, so the celebration of the fact becomes more general. It makes no great difference whether or not this is the exact time of year when the empty tomb attested the divinity of Christ. The main thing is, that the tomb was emptied, by Divine power, and that Christ became "the first fruits of them that slept." That is what the Christian world celebrates.

The first Easter was the central fact in the world's history. Before that the tomb was dark and dismal and the grave was the long home, wherein was nothing but dust; since that the grave is but the portal to a larger and fuller life.

In the celebration of the Christian festival, it matters not at all that the Pagans had their festival of spring, when the joyous revival of the earth life was recognized; or, rather, it matters only as showing the inborn mysterious feeling in every human soul that after the winter of death comes the spring of another life. The early apostles of Christianity to the northern nations showed their wisdom when they grafted upon the old heathen festival of the spring goddess Easter the larger and fuller meaning which their faith perceived in it.

Let the world rejoice, then, on Easter day; for in the ceremonies of that festival there is a significance that should bring joy to every human soul. Death does not end all. The grave has been conquered, once for all, for all them that believe; and the revival of all nature is but the adumbration of a deep spiritual truth whose full significance we can but scantily comprehend, and the full joy of whose promise we can taste only in anticipation.—Mail & Express.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE MONITOR.)

Washington, D. C., Mar. 30, '91.

The president is not a man easy to take offense, nor given to implying improper motives to men, who, for political reasons make a practice of misrepresenting everything that he or any member of his administration does, but he is an ordinary human being, and as such resents the outright manufacture of stories for the express purpose of making, or rather trying to make misunderstanding between himself and other republican leaders. Therefore it is only natural that he should be somewhat offended at the publication of a newspaper article intimating that he and Maj. McKinley are rivals for the presidential nomination next year, and purporting to state upon authority that Maj. McKinley was already actively working against the re-nomination of Mr. Harrison and for his own nomination, and further, that Maj. McKinley claimed the nomination as a right, because he was the author of the tariff act passed by the fifty-first congress.

The story was a bundle of mis-statements from the beginning to the end, and the object of its democratic author is easily discernible, as, in order to make it appear more plausible and as emanating from a republican source, it is based upon the assumed certainty of the nomination and election of Maj. McKinley as governor of Ohio this fall. That such will be the case is the general belief and hope of all republicans hereabouts, but the object of the writer of the story was to prevent the very thing that he assumed to be certain to occur. He hoped to create dissension among the Ohio republicans by making it appear that Maj. McKinley's election as governor would be covertly opposed by the president.

This democratic would-be mischief maker well knew that Maj. McKinley was out of this city that his story would get well circulated before there would be an opportunity to deny it. Now, as a matter of fact, I happen to know that the president is particularly desirous of seeing Maj. McKinley nominated for governor of Ohio, and that he proposes doing everything that he may with propriety do to help elect the champion of protection after he is nominated, and I also know that Maj. McKinley is fully aware of these sentiments of Mr. Harrison, and that he is equally as friendly towards Mr. Harrison. It is evident, however, that the democrats propose to keep up their old time tactics of trying to make political capital for their own party by attempting to create dissension among the friends of prominent republicans; therefore the republicans should be constantly on their guard and place no credence in stories of alleged quarrels or "strained relations" between eminent republicans. The republican party, has represented in congress and in the administration, is to-day clearer of factions than it has been at any time for fifteen years past.

Secretary Foster has exploded another democratic "Roorback." It was stated that the treasury department was greatly embarrassed to know where the money was to come from to redeem the $50,000,000 of 4½ per cent bonds that will mature next September. This statement caused the new secretary to smile when his attention was called to it. The holders of these bonds need not wait until September, as the treasury department is ready now to redeem them as fast as presented, paying the full interest to date of maturity. That's how embarrassed it is. The embarrassment is all in the minds of the democratic newspaper writers, who are compelled to furnish sensational political matter at all times, even if it has to be entirely manufactured, as this was.

The return of the special train which carried the remains of the late Senator Hearst and the accompanying congressional committee to San Francisco has been the signal for a revival of all the gossip of several years past regarding extravagant congressional funerals. There is no doubt that these funerals have cost more money than they should have cost, nor is there any doubt that a reform is needed, but the man who can believe that they have been the pleasure junkets that some imaginative writers have described must rate the congressmen who have attended them as a grade lower than brutes, and I, being reasonably familiar with the characters of the senators and representatives, can not do so.

There was a rumor here a day or two ago that the Canadian government, under instruction from Great Britain, had requested Attorney-General Miller to agree to the withdrawal of the Sayward case (Behring Sea) from the cognizance of the supreme court, in view of the negotiation for arbitration; but it is denied at the department of Justice. It has not been fully decided what country will set as the arbitrator, but it is believed that Switzerland will be chosen. The president's annual proclamation of warning to illegal sealers may contain a surprise for some people.

Mrs. Wires.—We desire to say to our citizens that we have been selling Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Dr. King's New Life Pills, Bucklen's Arnica Salve and Electric Bitters, and have never handled remedies that sell as well or that have given such universal satisfaction. We do not hesitate to guarantee them every time, and we stand ready to refund the purchase price, if satisfactory results do not follow their use. These remedies have won their great popularity purely on their merits. H. C. Pierce, druggist.

The Italian war scare has served one good purpose. It has emphasized the warning of the late Samuel J. Tilden that our sea coasts are ill defended from foreign assault, and should be fortified at any cost. Mr. Tilden's judgment was sound. He was unable to impress it on his own party, which was then in power in the popular branch of congress, and his theory has been antagonized by democrats in every congress since.

Yet here we are at the mercy of a second class power like Italy, whose fleet of ironclads and warships could lay waste every seaport in the United States. Of course there would be a day of reckoning. We have 65,000,000 of people of unlimited wealth in our 3,600,000 square miles of country, whereas Italy has only 39,000,000 of impoverished people in 110,000 square miles. But her navy is far stronger than ours, and our coasts are literally defenseless against them. We shall have no war, but the war scare has brought home a practical realization of the necessity for the adoption and perfection immediately of a thorough coast defense system.

"Cared my husband of bronchitis at once," wrote a lady about Johnson's Anodyne Liniment.

Sensible Advice About Going West.

People who may be tempted to rush westward for the purpose of taking claims in the new lands that have been opened for settlement in Oklahoma, Montana, Idaho, South Dakota and Washington would do well, before starting out, to lay in a stock of information about the region in which they would like to settle. There are many wide and attractive regions west of the Mississippi river, and on both sides of the Rocky mountains, in which land can yet be purchased or obtained freely, and in which towns will hereafter be built; but it must not be forgotten that there are also arid, blizzard-breeding, desolate, rainless regions in which the farmer, cattle-raiser and trader cannot flourish. There are, of course, many schemes, some of which have been before Congress, for government irrigation on a vast scale, and for turning the blizzards skyward, and for securing a regular rainfall at the proper season, and for other changes, not to be brought about in the course of nature; but meanwhile the settler who goes to the sterile regions has a hard time and is not likely to stay there long, if he can get away. Almost every year the legislatures of several states beyond the Mississippi are asked to make appropriations for the relief of famishing settlers. Within the past few weeks appeals of this kind have been made in Kansas, Nebraska, South Dakota and Idaho, and delegates therefrom have sent out to other states to try to raise money for the sufferers, who had undoubtedly been allured to regions in which they should not have settled. Their hard ships ought to serve as a warning to other people who "think of going west" without knowing anything about that part of the west toward which their eyes may be turned.—New York Sun.

DOM PEDRO or OLD VINCENT.

This well-known horse was sired by the shield horse by Vermont Morgan Champion, by Old Sherman, by Old Justin Morgan. His dam was a Farrington mare sired by the Wilson Horse, and he by Norton's Morgan and grand-dam of old Farrington mare. Dam of the old shield horse was a Morgan mare known as the Goose mare.

The horse stands 16½ hands high and weighs 1150 pounds; his coloring, mahogany bay; his eye action is good. He was foaled June 15, 1887, but is still a very safe foal getter. They are kind, not skittish, and full of life and spirit. The horse is a great roadster, having frequently made 15 miles an hour on ordinary roads. Good judges have said that "Old Vincent" could show a 2:40 gait to wagon.

The horse will be kept at my stables at the Day Horse Hotel, in Glover, during the present season.
I have recorded the pedigree of this horse as required by Act 108 of the Session Laws of Vermont, 1888, and shall take advantage of the said act relative to liens on colts. TERMS TO WARRANT, $5.
